

Allies for Excellence:

Building the Home – School Partnership

Studies show that a cooperative relationship between a child’s home and school communities can significantly improve academic achievement. It is therefore critical that parents establish home environments that support learning at home; while meaningfully engaging in activities in their child’s school community.

In this workshop, parents will learn effective ways to:

- Create a home environment that promotes academic success;
- Maintain positive communication with teachers and administration;
- Engage in child’s school in a way that supports the child and the school community as a whole.
