

Carol Muleta With an M.B.A. in Marketing from the University of Virginia's Darden School, Carol's professional background includes new product development, product management, and strategic planning. She is the mother of twin sons whose contrasting temperaments and learning styles fascinated her early on and shaped her parenting philosophy -- one which eschews "forced equality" and emphasizes nurturing each child according to his unique needs and gifts and empowering each to realize the full measure of his potential to contribute to the world in a way that only he can. Her approach to parenting informs her work as co-founder of Gardener Parenting Consulting, LLC which provides training and consultative services as well as customized tools and techniques to guide parents as they endeavor to raise children who are confident, capable, and compassionate. She has been a parent educator, presenting workshops, for several years with a local non-profit group where she currently sits on the board of directors. Carol has served her community in many roles including Mocha Moms chapter president, board trustee of The Kingsbury School, and children's worship director at Michigan Park Christian Church in Washington, DC.

Carol has contributed expert advice to numerous parenting blogs. Check out her latest offering at http://www.parentingskillsblog.com/parenting_skills_blog_fro/2011/06/character-1.html
